Autism Ontario promotes World Autism Awareness Day

April 2, 2009 (Toronto).

Autism Ontario hopes for the day when every Ontarian knows about people with Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD) and their families. With 1 in 150 children affected, 3000 Canadians are being newly diagnosed each year.

Children with autism grow up to be adults with autism. The treatments and supports required by children and adults with ASD and their families must be individualized, based on respected evidence and available across the lifespan. No one should be forgotten.
